LETTER: Can't we all just get along?

Dear Editor:

We are regular hikers on Fromme Mountain and have been for at least eight years. We have walked with our dogs for many years. They have since passed on and now we take our granddogs.

It is very unclear to us as to why (Valerie) Ramsey and other hikers have such a problem with the bikers.

We come across bikers all the time. We step off the trail, they greet us, we greet them and everyone goes their merry way.

The bikers are always polite and thank us for giving them space. It might also be noted that the North Shore Mountain Bike (Association) spends a lot of time and does a lot of good work up there.

For two people who can't get along with two per cent, why do we have to spend more money having separate trails?
