Subject: Excellent letter to the editor of The Vancouver Sun

To:

Ernie Crist, Esq., Councillor
District of North Vancouver

Dear Mr Crist,

I was very pleased to read your letter to the Editor of The Vancouver Sun today and relieved to know that at least one person in authority and influence is prepared to tell the truth about the latest phoney water crisis. As you very justly and very aptly put it, there is no shortage of available water. There is a shortage of people in authority with the foresight and resolve to bring the water to where it is needed.

Every time we have a dry spell, the sanctimonious water conservation extremists climb into their pulpits and start preaching their customary wrong messages, especially true this time with the Sun fanning the flames of this phoney crisis with articles by Daphne Bramham and Chad Skelton, calling once again for water metering and branding us as WATER HOGS. Hysterical journalism at its worst.

I very much hope that there are more like you in positions of authority who will do the right thing and built or expand the aqueducts necessary to bring our beautiful, fresh, and abundant water to where it is needed.

I have the honour to be,

Yours very truly,

R. D. Dunn, M.A. (Brit.Col.), D.Phil. (Oxon.)
