VOICE OF BC

Talking Transportation

Victoria, British Columbia - April 28th, 2004 - On land, the deal to have CN operate BC Rail continues to provide controversy for the provincial government. A recently leaked document revealed the potential length of the agreement could be 990 years brought renewed opposition to the deal.

By sea, the now private government-owned company running BC Ferries decision to shop outside of BC for new ships has also generated negative response.

Will the BC Liberal government's plan to revamp BC rail stay on track and will they avoid stormy seas and back down on their commitment not to interfere in the running of BC Ferries?.

BC's new Transportation Minister Kevin Falcon addresses these and the transportation roadmap for the future on Voice of BC.

Produced by the Shaw TV Legislature Bureau, Voice of BC is hosted by Vancouver Sun columnist Vaughn Palmer, one of BC's foremost political commentators.
